2 Hi all! We have been hard at work on the upcoming beta test and we have reason to share in the form of a scenario running on Vanilla. The scenario is called Battle of Tong Gate by long-time community contributor, Wix0rt, and only gave us the wink wink hint of it on the RWBY Season 4 Art Party countdown video a few months back! There is eye roll grating evidence going into battle already starting for the scenario, the map alone is a bit aeyyy! There is a lot of backstory, details and concept, design and polish work going into this upcoming scenario so we just wanted to share it with you all early and set expectations for what you can expect from that. This scenario is designed for Chapter 19 players but is playable on the full version as well. Any differences mentioned in here will make its way into full version. Much of the content will involve story, visuals and general polish so there is a fair bit of upwork on it. To not ruin anything we'll keep it vague until closer to the beta test. wink We are starting by showing some examples of the environments to help get a good feel for the map. If everything unfolds, it's nice to have a preview of what we'll be battling a team through so we are going to play through those two with an early outline of what will be occurring in the scenario. Grasslands City is the starting point for scenarios like this, meaning you will open into the map in a large area that will further expand from there based on its location, structure and beauty. Let's see the 2 areas that we'll get a glimpse of today. Map area 1: Grasslands City (Start and End) Here is a preview of the first map area. The map is scaled on the large version for reference purposes, but don't let it fool you. This area is 7 times the size of the other area we'll be seeing today. The map has large populated zones accessible by multiple pathways which provide direct access to facilities and then also wide open spaces that can be utilized to drive up distance and fire range. There are multiple large structures dotted throughout the map area which provide lots of size, varied sub-areas and plenty of cover. This start map area presents us with a couple

Backgammon meets grand strategy. Or as TheRebel's Guide to Imperial Strategy puts it: "Star Realms offers you a style of gaming we've never seen before. Backgammon meets boardgame meets online." Four players draft a small group of heroes from across the Star Realms galaxy. Each player can choose from a collection of thirty unique heroes, ranging from the immortal Elder Dragons, to the self-replicating Urds, to a variety of lesser-known aliens. Then, with ninety-six unique cards at their disposal, each player lays their cards down, and the fate of countless worlds are decided. Anti-nitrite oxide compounds in advanced glycation end product-free diet reduce severity of murine hypertension. Although dietary nitric oxide (NO) plays a protective role in a number of cardiovascular diseases in animal models, its potential to reduce hypertension in humans remains controversial. Its usefulness in the treatment of essential hypertension is currently being evaluated in a controlled trial. The aim of this study was to identify dietary NO-donating compounds (hydralazine and NG-nitro-L-arginine methyl ester) that prevent the development of hypertension in a model of dietary salt restriction-induced hypertension. In 1 week, male spontaneously hypertensive rats (SHRs) and normotensive Wistar-Kyoto rats (WKYs) were put on high-salt (4% NaCl, KH2PO4) and a low-salt (0.2% NaCl, KH2PO4) diets with or without antioxidants (2% alpha-lipoic acid, alpha-tocopherol). Concurrent treatment with antioxidants delayed the development of hypertension. A similar effect was observed for hydralazine or NG-nitro-L-arginine methyl ester in WKYs. In SHRs, only NG-nitro-L-arginine methyl ester (correlated with NOx levels) significantly reduced blood pressure and prevented its rise during the treatment period. The magnitude of the antihypertensive effect of NG-nitro-L-arginine methyl ester was inversely related to the daily salt intake. Elevated plasma aldosterone levels associated with hypertension were reduced by NG-nitro-L-arginine methyl ester. We conclude that dietary NG-nitro-L-arginine methyl ester reduces blood pressure and blunts its rise in hypertensive SHRs.
